Cleveland, Ohio, May 21.-The Naps bent Falkenberg, the Human Hat Pin, this afternoon, and romped away with the Score: third game of the series with the Natio als, 4 to 1. Joss incidentally won h ninth consecutive victory, keeping h at the head of the American League twi ers, as he has not been beaten yet th year. Falkenberg pitched well, being puzzle to his adversaries most of the tim Had his team mates been able to make little progress with the stick, he mig have come out victorious,

Jones' misjudgment of Birmingham's in the fourth inning resulted in two to lies, and slow work upon the part to drop safely back of first base in the eighth inning, and resulted in one run. So, with these mishaps eliminated, the score would have been one to one, and the contest likely would have gone extra innings, which, it appears, would have ginning to weaken in the final round,

Neither team did any hard swatting, and the outfielders as a result had an easy time of it. Jones amassed two-thirds of the hits of his team and scored their only tally. Cross and Altizer accepted six diff base better than at any time in the his-tory of Cleveland fandom. Altizer and Cross kept him stretching and taking throws with the gloved hand, while he dug into the dirt several times to retire run

Plays in Detail.

Jones' single in the opener went to waste, as Cross fouled to Bemis and Hickman flied to Lajoie. Larry's great work killed a hit for Ganley, after two were gone in the third. The right fielder bunted toward first base, and Stovall got the ball too late to beat him to the bag, but Lajole, coming on a dead run, caught the toss with bare hand as he crossed the base. Two down in the fifth, Nill was hit running. He walked, and took third when Stovall chucked the ball on Cross' easy roller over Turner's head. Hickman then fanned, and Altizer was thrown out by Joss. Jones dashed for home as soon as the ball left Joss' hands, and beat Stovall's throw to Bemis by a foot. Anderson strolled, but Nill was easy.

Flick's single, a sacrifice, an out, and Lajoie's infield hit brought in the Naps' berg vesterday. They declare the team of the characteristics of the slightest ground for the story printed the slightest ground for the story printed the characteristics. That is what we are after—results. That is what we are after—results. That is what we are after—results. Whenever we see that a trade will substitute that such a trade will benefit us we are going to make it. The New Yorks were not in their best form, nor the Cubs, either, for that matter, but the latter showed some clever, inside ball, excelling the locals in this respect and winning by better playing.
